

Government, in any form, must stay out of personal communications. It is a blatant invasion of privacy with no just cause. The only reason the government is considering this is because of the relative ease. Imagine the outcry if the next step in "protecting" me is to start opening and reading my snail-mail!! Get out and stay out, and that includes the draconian shift in censorship from the FCC. I don't need nor do I want your opinion on what I can and can't read, hear or view.
